

Prepare to Care: Planning for Caregiving Responsibilities

No matter where you are in your caregiving journey — beginning to anticipate future needs, handling an acute situation, or managing existing care needs — having a good framework on hand will help guide your family through major care decisions. We've outlined a few areas of our Care Framework for you to consider when planning for caregiving responsibilities.

Medical

Enlist the right professionals, keep on top of appointments, and stay organized.

- ✓ Establish care with appropriate providers
- ✓ Gather and store medical records
- ✓ Keep master medication and contact list
- ✓ Set up a shared calendar and keep everyone on the same page

Legal

Setting up the right legal documents will take effort, but these will make tough decisions easier.

- ✓ Establish Power of Attorney
- ✓ Complete a Healthcare Power of Attorney
- ✓ Prepare a Will
- ✓ Create a Living Will, also known as an Advance Directive

Financial

Get a handle of finances and existing benefits to better inform needs and priorities.

- ✓ Understand Social Security
- ✓ Understand Long-Term Care Insurance
- ✓ Evaluate health insurance options
- ✓ Identify other financial assistance through state-, federal-based programs or non-profits

In-Home

With some careful planning, you can ensure your loved one remains safe in the home.

- ✓ “Fall proof” the home (handrails, lighting, etc.)
- ✓ Explore home care options (aides, helpers, etc.)
- ✓ Investigate assistive technologies
- ✓ Arrange for home assessment to evaluate larger safety modifications.

Housing

Start by outlining preferences, care needs, and budget to identify the best-fit housing options.

- ✓ Explore housing options like independent and assisted living, nursing or group homes
- ✓ Assemble a moving support team — family, friends, professional movers and moving managers
- ✓ Locate short-term solutions like respite care

Social/Emotional

Make sure you and your family feel supported and stay connected.

- ✓ For loved ones faced with cognitive decline, explore memory care support programs
- ✓ Try in-person, online or phone-based support groups to connect with others in a similar situation
- ✓ Consider professional counseling and therapy
